POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

There's a host of would-be charter members waiting and anxious to sign on the dotted line, according to reports along the political Rialto, if somebody will just call the meeting to order and organize The California Association of Candidates for United States Senator in 1944!

The membership roll, in fact, might even rival that of the Native Sons, or the American Legion, if the boys could only get together on a slate of officers and a few matters of procedure.

One of the points in dispute, admits State Railroad Commissioner Justus Craemer, who is an active advocate of the proposed association, is the question of who would be president. In a group of such ambitious men, that's a problem, but even that isn't the real stickler.

The rock on which all organization plans have foundered, it appears, is the point of who is to be treasurer! The candidates, one and all, even including the incumbent, Senator Sheridan Downey, are willing to grant one of their rivals the right to be president of the organization, if, in exchange, they are given the right to handle the funds for the group.

But as there seems to be a hopeless deadlock on that situation, let's take a look, anyway at the prospective members of the organization that can't get organized—The Candidates for United States Senator in 1944.

Here they are, with apologies made in advance if the linotype operator can't get all the names in the column:

The incumbent, Senator Downey, who has the distinction of having more opponents than there are members in the United States Senate. Mr. Downey is a Democrat, supporting President Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Railroad Commissioner and Publisher Justus Craemer of Orange, one of the best GOP bets.

Lieutenant Governor Fred Houser, who might run, but probably won't, as his present office may well be a stepping stone to the Governorship if Governor Warren should seek higher honors.

Ex-Governor Culbert L. Olson and Ex-Lieutenant Governor Ellis E. Patterson, who didn't get along too well when they held their respective offices—and who may end up campaigning against each other and against the erstwhile third man on their one-time ticket, Senator Downey.

State Senator Jack Tenney of Los Angeles(a Democrat, who achieved considerable prominence exposing subversive activities.

Phil Bancroft, the fighting farmer from Walnut Creek, who almost made it last time.

Dr. Walter Dexter, State school chief.

Speaker of the Assembly Charley Lyon, suave and able, and a vetetran of 27 years in the Legislature.

Superior Judge Goodwin J. Knight of Los Angeles.

Ray Haight, Los Angeles attorney and one-time Progressive candidate for Governor.

Congressman John Costello of Hollywood; Congressman Harry Sheppard, who represents Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties; and Byron Scott, an ex-congressman, now on the War Production Board.

Kiwanians Hear Talk On Honey

Instead of a land "flowing with milk and honey," Rev. Donald Baldwin talked about a state supplying "bread and honey," Montana, the "Stub-toe" state, when he talked Tuesday to his fellow Kiwanians of his summer weeks spent in that state.

On account of the labor shortage and the calls for help he combined his vacation with work helping his parents who are producers of an exceptional grade of Montana honey.

Prices for honey were very favorable this year but flood conditions and a late spring caused the loss of a few hives and a normal output.

He also enjoyed many side trips, one of them to the vast wheat producing area of that state. The wheat produced here is of such high grade that it brings a premium price and is used to mix with lower grade grown elsewhere to make the standard wheat for bread.

He was guest speaker at a Kiwanis meeting and supplied a pulpit while away.

Dr. W. R. Morgan was chairman for the day, and visitors were Robert Glaw of Campbell and Rev. Father J. Ryan of San Jose.

Next Tuesday is ladies night at which the ladies literally "take over," with Mrs. Donald Baldwin chairman, introducing Clyde Arbuckle, whose subject will be "California History." Meeting is scheduled for 6:45 p. m.

Election of officers will also be held at this meeting.

Rebekahs Met Tuesday Night

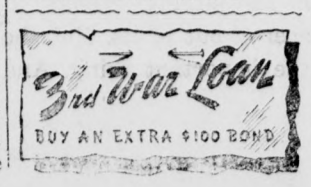
Other guests of the afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Archibald, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Ipas, Mr. and Mrs. T. Teresi and children, Daniel and Vivian, Mrs. Oscar Spillman, Miss Betty Jane Spillman and Hans Hansen.

Judging from the good health Mr. a.nd Mrs. Whipple have enjoyed Santa Clara county is an ideal location in which to live.



War Bond Sale Slow In Campbell

Campbell, the town which usually meets all obligations and puts things over with a bang, is falling behind in the Third War Loan drive with only $59,000 worth of bonds purchased out of the quota of $180,000.

Some districts, however, have not as yet been thoroughly canvassed due to various reasons, but are expected to be before the close of the campaign. If a warden fails to make contact with any person in his area—contact him and soon, it is urged by the local committee. Calls for volunteers to fill in have also been made and those willing to canvas should get in touch with W. H. Van Dyke or W. N. Lloyd.

As a contribution to the war loan campaign many banks have waived their usual regulations governing the payment of interest on savings account withdrawals and will allow regular interest to Sept. 1 on withdrawals this months for direct investment in war bonds. Since Series E, F, and G, Goverment bonds purchased in September draw interest from Sept 1, savings may now be invested in these issues without loss of earnings.

Wardens this week are doubling their efforts in the campaign and it is asked that everyone be ready to purchase a bond—any amount—when he calls.

EDUCATION COMES FIRST

The end of the summer vacation brings the schools squarely up against a stickler posed by thousands of youngsters who would prefer to continue working at high wages in industry than go back to school.

With war work boosting wages to new peaks, many teen-age youngsters are earning more money than they dreamed existed before this war. They have been performing adult tasks well, and earning adult pay. And as a consequence, many are feeling almost too big for their boots, much as some of their highly paid elders do.

The problem of getting the boys and girls back to school is complicated by the fact that youngsters naturally think in terms of lofty aspiration and slight experience rather than in terms of reason. Parental assurance that education will create earning power for them in the future far in excess of what they may temporarily earn in war time falls flat on the ears of youngsters jingling money in their pockets now.

The situation calls for firmness on the part of parents and school authorities. As Miss Mary B. Perry, western child labor consultant of the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, says: "We are fighting this war for our children, not asking them to fight it for us."

Valuable as are the contributions of school age boys and girls in war work, for their own welfare and that of the nation, their education must come first.

CONGRESS RECONVENES

Congress is back on the job in the Nation's Capitol after a ten-week vacation with the "folks back home."

It is a different Congress. Not that the personnel of Congress has changed but the attitude of its constituents has—and therein lies the difference.

For ten weeks the lawmakers have been listening to what the people had to say. And the people said plenty. The war, bringing with it heavy taxation and many restrictions, has made the average American acutely conscious of government—especially the Federal government. And while the "man on the street" is quite willing to pay his share of the war and to accept whatever restrictions are necessary, he has made it plain to his congressman that care should be used in government spending, and that some of the restrictions are needlessly severe.

Many people are suspicious that government bureaus are using the war as an excuse to regulate almost every detail of their private lives, and that an attempt will be made by theorists to continue them even after the emergency is over. Direct criticism of the President is also becoming more pronounced. He is being held more and more responsible for the home front muddle, although he is credited somewhat with the satisfactory progress of the war.

It all adds up to the fact that the American people as a whole are undoubtedly doing more real thinking today than ever before. And it is none too soon. Too long has the "government" been some far-off, vaporous entity that always had unlimited cash to spend. Too long has there been the feeling that it didn't make much difference what Congress or the other branches of government did, because it didn't seem to affect us much, anyway.

But all that is changed now. It has required an earth-shaking war with all its jarring effects to knock much of the complacency out of us. But the change has come—that's the important thing. And Congress knows it.

THE CHINA "INCIDENT"

This month marks the twelfth year of World War II. Twelfth year? Yes, if you look back through the pages of your modern history book you will find that in September of 1931, the first major act of unprovoked aggression was perpetrated by the Tokyo war lords against China.

On the excuse that they were seeking to destroy "communists" who had "sabotaged" a rail-line, the Nips overran all of Manchuria.

We felt sorry for China, but went on doing business with Japan. The League of Nations "investigated," administered a verbal spanking, and Tokyo quit the League. It didn't seem to mean much—then. We didn't know what it would mean later: Ethiopia in 1935, Shanghai 1937, Austria 1938, Poland 1939, and Pearl Harbor 1941.

We've learned a lesson, but the important thing is —to remember it!

JUST ADD A LITTLE WATER

The problem of feeding the peoples of Europe when the bells of victory ring is not simply one of gathering tons of food and shipping it to France, Belgium or the Balkans. It is much more than that.

Not only must each of the foods sent them be highly nourishing, easy to distribute and easy to prepare, but it must require comparatively little shipping space so that each ship may carry a maximum load.

Accordingly, the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation has been preparing foods rich in vitamins, such as dehydrated soups, stews, fish pastes, and porridge mixtures, which can be prepared simply by adding water. Concentration of these foods will further reduce their bulk. Through dehydration and concentration, ten pounds of potatoes, for instance, can be put into a "pill box" measuring six inches, by two, by three.

The progress made in the dehydration and concentration of foods suggests the question, Will our own foods be marketed in this form after the War? Scientific methods have simplified the marketing problem of the American housewife, but such a change would further ease her chores. Instead of wrestling with a ten-pound bag of potatoes, she would merely drop its dehydrateed equivalent lightly into her purse.

Preparing meals would also be simplified. Her principal recipe would be, "Just add a little water."

SHANGHAIING FARM LABOR

A Gilroy rancher, who allegedly reverted to the tactics of shipmasters of long ago to obtain labor, recently was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for labor piracy. He was accused of shanghaiing thirteen Mexican farm laborers from an adjoining ranch and of holding off three immigration inspectors with a shotgun. The incident illustrates better than the reams of words already written on the subject, the shortage of farm labor in California.

The solution to the problem, of course, is not the one reached by the Gilroy rancher. But it does serve to point out the seriousness of our critical farm labor shortage—and the vital need for constructive government action to relieve it. No farmer wants to "kidnap" farm workers to get his crops in, but the truth of the matter is that war factories and the draft drained away the farmer's labor supply until he was almost desperate enough to take any steps to save his crops.

AMERICAN HEROES
BY LEFF

Without sleep, rest or food for three days and nights, Marine Platoon Sergeant Basilone fought off repeated Jap attacks on his machine gun emplacement in the Solomons and won the Congressional Medal of Honor. "Manila John" Basilone of New Jersey, son of an Italian emigrant, stood his ground until, when reinforcements arrived, he had accounted for 38 Japs. How many Third War Loan Bonds will you yourself account for, to back such men as Basilone?

Vegetable Oils

United States vegetable oil technicians have recognized Brazil as the world's greatest potential source of vegetable oil exports. Millions of oil-bearing trees grow wild in the tropical areas of northern Brazil. The big problem is to obtain labor and transportation.

Open New Mines

Many new mines have gone into operation as the result of the expansion of Mexican mineral output for United Nations war needs. An economic review reported an increase of 124 mines in operation in Mexico in the first seven months of 1942.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"A Sense of Humus" by Bertha Damon.

First a word about the author of this delicious book. Having breathed her first in a small Connecticut town, Bertha Damon was brought up by the Grandma she made famous in her first book, the best-seller "Grandma Called It Carnal." There she attended the district school, later she graduated from boarding school and college in New England. She has earned her living in various ways, the most interesting to her being the successful building and remodeling of houses, though she had no formal training as an architect. She is a nationally famous lecturer and was the first woman ever invited to speak before the Harvard Club of Boston. She has roamed the High Sierras in California, has done gardening in New Hampshire and has done spinning on an old fashioned wheel. But her greatest and most luscious contribution to the reading world has been her spicy, witty and deliciously human books.

"A Sense of Humus" is as pleasant as spending an afternoon listening to a vivacious person relate her pleasures and difficulties of gardening. It is not difficult to see how this book has reached the best-seller list and has stayed there for several weeks and it is my guess that it will be there for many months yet to come.

This book is not without people—the hired man for instance and others—who give the tale color. With gardening as the ground work of the theme structure the author dares, and wisely too, to work from rock bottom, as it were, and build a structure of common sense, humor, rich philosophy and bright wit that literally shines and permeates the least of us—the greatest of us—and leaves us with a smile in our hearts that will not soon fade.

Being a book of personal experiences, it is readily applicable to each of our lives, and though we have not as much as planted a radish, we cannot but appreciate its virtue of being an "escape" book these days and times. And such it is. If you wish to hide away from the war, from business and rushed hours and days and forget all, take along a copy of "A Sense of Humus" and you will not be sorry.

MEXICO
A REPUBLIC SINCE 1822, MEXICO IS SECOND LARGEST IN POPULATION AND THIRD LARGEST IN AREA OF THE LATIN AMERICAN REPUBLICS. (19,154,000 POP., 758,258 SQ. MILES.)
AZTEC "BREAD BASKETS"! SILT DUG UP FROM SHALLOW LAKE TEXCOCO WAS POURED INTO HUGE BASKETS RESTING ON LAKE FLOOR. CROPS RAISED IN THIS RICH SOIL BROUGHT POWER AND WEALTH TO ONCE-POOR AZTECS. "ISLANDS" THUS CREATED WERE THE START OF PRESENT-DAY MEXICO CITY.
PYRAMID OF THE SUN, A RELIGIOUS TEMPLE NEAR MEXICO CITY, IS 200 FEET HIGH, COVERS 11 ACRES OF GROUND AND IS BELIEVED TO BE OVER 1,000 YEARS OLD. BUILT BY AN UNKNOWN INDIAN TRIBE, IT IS MADE OF ADOBE BRICK, FACED WITH STONE AND PLASTER.
CHICLE, SAP OF THE SAPOTE TREE AND BASIS OF CHEWING GUM, COMES IN SOME QUANTITIES FROM MEXICAN FORESTS.
NEW MASTERS! MODERN MEXICAN FRESCOS, WATER-COLOR MURALS PAINTED ON WET PLASTER, RIVAL THOSE OF ITALIAN MASTERS. MEXICAN CLIMATE IS LIKE ITALY'S. TECHNIQUES ARE THE ONES USED BY GIOTTO, FAMED 14TH CENTURY ITALIAN ARTIST.
MEXICO IS THE WORLD'S LEADING PRODUCER OF SILVER. SINCE THE 16TH CENTURY 5½ BILLION OUNCES HAVE BEEN MINED—MORE THAN A THIRD OF TOTAL WORLD PRODUCTION.
Mexico's people, like those of the other Middle American republics, believe in democracy. To protect their freedom now and preserve it in the post-war world, they offer their material wealth to the United Nations' war effort—copper, lead, zinc, petroleum, cocoa, bananas, sisal and henequen (for twine), tin, tungsten, hemp, quinine, guayule rubber, tannin, and castor oil, among other products.
In the post-war world, as today in a world at war, Mexico and the other republics of Middle America will play their vital parts as members of the Pan American family of nations.

This Month's STAR RECIPE

By BETTY BARCLAY

Another month calls for another "Star" recipe — this time for a crunchy cookie that fits equally well into the midnight snack, the worker's lunch pail and the children's school lunch.

Are you out of cinnamon? Too bad! It's the war. But the footnote of the recipe solves this problem.

Crunchies

¼ cup dark corn syrup
⅓ cup evaporated milk
2 tablespoons sugar
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
3 cups Post Toasties

Combine syrup and milk. Add sugar and cinnamon. Add to cereal, mixing lightly but thoroughly. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet 2 inches apart. Flatten with back of spoon in thin lacey discs. Bake in slow oven (325° F.) 15 minutes. To keep cookies from sticking, hold pan over flame for a few seconds while removing from pan. Makes 2½ dozen cookies.

Peanut Butter Crunchies. Omit cinnamon in above recipe; mix 2 tablespoons peanut butter with syrup and milk mixture.

FOR SALE — Mountain apples 75c to $1.25 a box at Campbell Hotel. E. E. Lanphear, 29 Campbell Ave., Phone 3655.

How to take care of GAS HEATING EQUIPMENT
RIGHT NOW is a good time to check up on the gas heating devices in your home. If repair is needed—do it at once. Usually, however, a good cleaning to remove dust and rust is enough. See examples below:
1 Take off the grill on your wall register or floor furnace. Have a cardboard carton handy and go to work with a brush or vacuum cleaner. A pancake turner can serve to lift out heavy dirt.
2 Is yours a forced-air furnace? Then take out filter pads. Give them a good cleaning or replace with new pads. Each fall have a heating dealer check over the furnace, fan, motor, controls and pilot light.
VENT PIPE TO FLUE
3 Take a look at the vent pipe that connects your heater and other gas equipment to the flue. If it is rusted out—have it replaced now.
4 Watch room temperature and save gas. Overheating your home isn't healthy anyway. If your fireplace has a damper—close it when the gas heat is on. It's good economy.
Gas Heating devices are built to give long years of service. Rust and dust are their worst enemies. With a little care now and then they will see you through the duration.
